

Manu Mahbubani - Alumni profile

Manu graduated from Aberystwyth University in 1982 with a BSc in Computer Science and Economics. He also holds an MBA from the University of Western Ontario. Since graduating, Manu has developed a successful career within IT, working at a senior level in software development.

Most recently, Manu was Vice President of Engineering for Cordys where he managed a software department of 250 staff that developed business process management products in the Netherlands and India. Other career highlights include working as Vice President of Business Development for XLTEK Inc. and as Vice President of Engineering for Cedara Software in Mississauga.

Manu spent three years studying at Aber and has very fond memories of his time at the University, he comments: "I really enjoyed my time at Aber. As an international student I valued the support and understanding from both the professors and administration staff. The student body was diverse. In addition to having friends from all over the UK one interacts with fellow students from many different parts of the world. All in all a very enriching experience! "
