CAPTAIN NITHAAR ZAIN

NOW WORKS FOR: SINGAPORE AIRLINES
COMMERCIAL AIRLINE PILOT

After graduating I moved to Texas to embark on my Commercial Pilot's License, after which I obtained my Flight Instructors License. I then worked as an instructor for 2 years in both Texas and Arizona, before moving back to London.

I then gained employment with Singapore Airlines, and joined on the Airbus A310 based in Singapore. I was then promoted to the Boeing 747-400. For the last 8 years, I have been flying long haul all over the world, and it really has been an amazing experience. A year ago I was promoted to Captain on the 747. The position carries huge responsibility in terms of being responsible for the safety of 400 people, as well as $130 million worth of aircraft.

I look back at my three years at the IGES in Aber, and have no doubt that the all round experience I had there both academically and socially, helped my CV immensely, and aided my overall development to be employ good 'crew resource management skills' which are now so important in modern day aviation.
